WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 27,

ANTIQUITY OF GLASS -The oldest specimen of pure glass bearing anything like a date is a little mou'ded liou's head, bearing the name of so Egyptiac king of the eleventh dyeas y, in the Slade collection at the British museum.-That is to say, at a period which may moderately be placed at more than two thousand years B. C., glass was not only made, but made with skill, which shows that the art was nothing new The invention of g! zing pottery with a film of glass is so old that among the fragments which bear inscriptions of the early Egyptian monarchy are beads possibly of the first dynasty. Of the numerous examples such as the bead found at Thete, which has the name of Queen Hateso a Hashep, of the 18th dynasty.

Of the same period are vases and goblets and many fragments. It cannot be doubted that the story prepared by Plicy, which assigns the credit of the invention to the I'l whichans, is so far true that these adventurous merchan's brought specimens to other countries from Egypt. Dr. Schliemann found disks of glass at the excavation at Micer æ, though Homer does not mention it as a substance known to him. That the modern art of the glassblower was known long before is certain from presentations among the pictures on the wals of a tomb at Benni Hassan, of the tweifth Exyptian dynasty, but a much older picture, which probably represented the same manufac-ture, is among the half obliterated scenes in a chamber of the tomb of Thy, at Sakkara, and dates from the time of the fifth dynasty-a time so remote that it is not possible, in spite of the assiduous researches of many Ecyptologers, to give it a date in years.
